PRIMARIES IN ANDOVER

Cox and Fuller Strongly Endorsed by Local Voters in State Primaries—Less Than One Third of Electorate Visits Polls.

Governor Channing Cox and Lieutenant Governor Alvan T. Fuller were given a very handsome endorsement by Andover voters Tuesday in the state primaries, in each case defeating their opponents more than 4 to 1. Senator Lodge and State Treasurer Jackson were similarly honored.

Peter Holt of North Andover carried the town, leading Kerr and Robinson his nearest competitors in every one of the four precincts. Ruskon was a poor fourth. Babb had a substantial lead over Bailey for county treasurer and Clark won over Jacobs for district attorney with more than 300 votes to spare. Ames led Chubb in the register of deeds fight by nearly 200 votes. Benton received more than half of the Republican votes cast for attorney general, Donnell failing to show much strength here.

On the Democratic side Fitzgerald made almost a clean sweep for governor and Gaston led the field for senator in congress. For state senator, Donnelly beat Gibbons exactly 2 to 1.

Less than 30 per cent of the registered voters cast their ballots and about 30 per cent of these were women. The total vote was 1108 with 963 Republicans and 145 Democrats. The voting was in four precincts for the first time and the ballots cast by the precincts follow:

Precinct 1—Republican 520; Democrat, 91.
Precinct 2—Republican 86; Democrat 27.
Precinct 3—Republican 161; Democrat 16.
Precinct 4—Republican 196; Democrat 11.

The counting began at 7 o'clock and the final return were given shortly before 11. The vote:

	REPUBLICAN				DEMOCRAT
	Pr.	Pr.	Pr.	Pr.	Pr.	Pr.	Pr.
Allen, J. W.	73	26	26	28	153
Cox, Channing	427	57	130	167	781
Blanks,	20	3	5	1	29

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN

Record Enrollment in All the Schools. Extra Accommodations May be Required in Shawheen.

The Andover public schools opened on Monday with an enrollment of 1222 pupils, an increase of 41 over the opening day last year. It is expected that the total registration will exceed 1300.

The Pynchard school has the largest number of pupils in its history, 248 being in attendance on Monday morning. The freshman class has 106 members which is an unusually large entering class.

At the Richardson school in Shawheen Village the enrollment is 109 with a prospect of more pupils. Additional seats have been placed in this school and it is probable that an extra room will have to be hired in order to accommodate the overflow.

There were 372 children assigned to classes at the John Dove and Samuel C. Jackson schools. The sixth grade is unusually large and every seat is occupied.

The public school enrollment is as follows: Pynchard High—Seniors, 31; Juniors, 48; Sophomores, 63; Freshmen, 106—Total, 248.

Stowe Junior High—Grade 7, 81; grade 8, 70—Total 151.

John Dove and S. C. Jackson—Grade 6, 35; grade 6b, 29; grade 5a, 38; grade 5b, 26; grade 4a, 39; grade 4b, 32; grade 3a, 35; grade 3b, 36; grade 2a, 38; grade 2b, 28; grade 1a, 27; grade 1b, 24—Total 372.

Bradlee—Grade 7, 21; grade 6, 30; grade 5, 18; grade 4, 19; grade 3, 19; grade 2, 15; grade 1, 34—Total 156.

Richardson—Grade 6, 20; grade 5, 18; grade 4, 13; grade 3, 21; grade 2, 13; grade 1, 24—Total 109.

Indian Ridge—Grade 6, 17; grade 5, 12; grade 4, 13; grade 3, 12; grade 2, 16; grade 1, 21—Total 91.

West Center—Grade 8, 3; grade 7, 2; grade 6, 9; grade 5, 4; grade 4, 5; grade 3, 6; grade 2, 5; grade 1, 3—Total 37.

Miss Evelyn Jenkins, who lives at the Stephen Abbott place on the corner of Ballardvale and Sunset Rock roads, was bitten by a German police dog owned by H. Bradford Lewis as she was passing along Hidden road Wednesday morning about 8.45 on her way to work at the Phillips Academy office. The wound required medical attendance. The dog was taken in charge by Charles Newton, inspector of animal industry and carried to Lawrence for observation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Francis with Miss Grace Francis and Polly Francis are in Baltimore, Md., where they will attend the wedding of their elder daughter, Miss Edna Mae Francis, and William T. Levitt, which will take place tomorrow evening at six-thirty in the Presbyterian church. Miss Francis will remain in Baltimore for the winter to complete the course in the department of Medical Art in Johns Hopkins University where she was a student last year.

The programme of Dr. Bowker's lectures at the Lawrence city hall in October is one of rare interest, including the famous Passion Play, "The World and Us", one of his most successful topics in his New York series, and "The Story of Searles," embracing bits of history of this strange Methuen millionaire never before made public. Dr. Bowker, who returned from Europe in July, has spent his summer painting four hundred illustrations for this series, the most important in his career.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Driver of Automobile, Motorcycleist and Pedestrian Suffer in Four Casualties on Andover Highways.

Guisepppe Barbar of Wakefield died Saturday morning at the Lawrence General hospital from multiple injuries sustained Friday night near Baker's turnout on the Reading highway.

Barba was on the way from Lawrence to Wakefield and is said to have ridden from Andover square to the top of the hill in the bus where he probably changed for the Reading car. It is uncertain where, or when, he left the car, and opinions differ as to whether or not he was under the influence of liquor. He was probably struck by an automobile about nine o'clock.

William Graustein of 19 Bowdoin street, Cambridge, picked up the man in his machine intending to carry him to the Lawrence General hospital. In Elm square the Graustein automobile caught fire and the fire department was called. The injured man was examined by Dr. Look and he was taken the rest of the way to the hospital by Fire Chief Charles F. Emerson.

The only identification mark was a bank book found in his pocket and bearing the name of Giuseppe Barba. The bank book was of the Bay State Bank, 197 Salem street, Boston. He was apparently between 30 and 35 years of age.

Graustein was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Joseph Laudini of 84 Valley street, Lawrence, was slightly injured when an auto which he was driving turned turtle on the Lowell road Sunday night. The accident occurred near Haggatt's pond. Laudini was taken to the Lawrence General hospital following the accident and was treated for lacerations of the left arm, hand and Abbott Academy will open next week, with the full complement of students. The capacity of the boarding department is 139 places which are all taken, and the present registration of day students is 52. There is still a waiting list of considerable length.

The registration day for both the day and boarding students is Wednesday, September 20th. Day students should come to Abbott Hall at 9:00 a.m. for registration and classification. Boarding students will register in Draper Hall before six o'clock p.m.

The first chapel exercises will be held in Abbott Hall, Thursday morning at nine o'clock.

Workmen have been busy all summer putting the buildings in repair, but there have been no conspicuous changes. The roof of Abbott Hall, and the roof of the front part of Draper Hall have been newly shingled. A substantial hardwood floor has been laid in the Music Studios, and in a few of the rooms of Draper Hall, and the bathroom facilities have been improved. The most approved style of gas range has been installed in the kitchen of Draper Hall. Windows have been cut, admitting more light to the Tower Staircase, and, in general, the buildings have been put in their usual excellent repair. Various fittings, too, have been restored and renewed.

The portrait of Miss Bailey, presented to the Academy in June by the class of 1922, has been hung in the Drawing Room of Draper Hall.

While there are numerous and some unexpected changes in the teaching staff, these are still many familiar faces.

Miss Howey, who is spending her year's leave of absence in teaching in Kobe College, Kobe, Japan, will be greatly missed both in the Academy and in the town, but undoubtedly the year will be one of great interest and refreshment to her. Her place will be taken by Miss Laura K. Fettingell, a former valued member of the Abbott faculty. Miss Fettingell is a graduate of Smith College. She has spent the year since she was

WILBUR THEATRE

New England theatregoers are promised a thrilling time when they visit the Wilbur theatre. Boston, and see the famous mystery play, "The Bat," with the original New York company that played the great success in the metropolis for two years and ten days.

Do you like a ghost story? Do you like to gather around an open fireplace with a group of congenial friends and contest for the honor of telling the weirdest story of the evening, the story that will produce the most thrills and shivers to the square inch, to be anatomical, of backbone? If you do like this sort of thing, and there are few youngsters aged six to sixty who don't, you will thrill and gasp and quite thoroughly enjoy the gripping mystery play, "The Bat."

Both critically and by public approval it has been voted that there are more thrills to the act in "The Bat" than in any other mystery play ever produced in New York. From the time the curtain goes up on a first moment of the play, "The Bat" is a succession of climatic dramatic incidents that cause the playgoer to gasp and shudder at each succeeding incident. It is a matter of interest, however, to prove the reasons for the back of the playgoer's seat to accept for three hours the melodramatic incidents of "The Bat" as bits of real life. It is interesting to note that the playgoer is a child at heart and instinct when he goes to the theatre and that he wants to be "told a good story" as much as any other youngster pleading for a fairy tale at bedtime.

That the playgoer of that frame of mind is satisfied with "The Bat" is not only proven by the spectacular success of that play in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and London, but also by the fact that Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood have collaborated on this particular "good story." Mrs. Rinehart is internationally known as a writer capable of devising the most ingenious and surprising mystery plots for stories and plays known to modern literature and Avery Hopwood has come to be known as one of the real masters of the art of dramatic technique and play construction. Together these two authors have made of "The Bat" one of the best "stories" ever told in the American theatre.

MAJESTIC

Blanche Ring and Charles Winninger appear at the Majestic theatre, Boston, next week beginning Monday afternoon, September 18th, as the stars of "As You Were." This is a two-act revue in six scenes, a condensed version of a very popular musical success of that name. The original three-act production, a funny and in the hour and a half version that will be presented at the Majestic, only the funny lines and situations have been retained. The producers of this unit have aimed to have a laughing show and they think they have succeeded in attaining this end.

As part of the vaudeville bill, beside Miss Ring and Mr. Winninger who will present their own original specialty, Bert Baker, well known vaudeville star, will also be seen with his company of four, in the laughing hit "Preparation." There is plenty of laughter here and you will find DuTeil and Covey another laughing team. Others on the vaudeville half of the entertainment are the three Pasquall Brothers, never before seen here, Elby & St. Leo, Edgar Atchison Ely and others.

The story of "As You Were" is woven around a man who obtains a box of these cure-all pills, swallows them, and is transplanted to another land. His adventures make good clean fun. There is plenty of opportunity for scenic changes and pretty costumes. Several of the scenes are strikingly pretty, notably the Watteau scene. Giving life and charm and color to this revue are sixteen pretty girls. They are not only pretty to look at, but they sing and dance well, too.

Daily matinees are given as well as the evening performances. Notwithstanding the elaborate nature of these new Shubert unit vaudeville shows, the same popular scale of prices as last season will prevail with a dollar as the top price at night and 50 cents afternoons.

See "Adam and Eva" at the Colonial in Lawrence
The success of "Adam and Eva" at the Colonial theatre in Lawrence this week is such that it is safe now to predict that the present stock season of Ye Colonial Players is going to be a long and prosperous one. Those who have not seen the company owe it to themselves to find out how really good it is, and how really splendid are its productions.

There will be no better time to get acquainted with the cast than in next week's play, "East Is West." This delightful comedy, with the scenes laid in Ceylon and later in San Francisco, tells a story that is at once human and entertaining, and the various parts are so well portrayed that they must be played or they will not be made the most of. Bernard Steele's Lawrence company can be relied upon to make good even in such a task as a play of the sort of "East Is West."

Miss Lenita Lane, of course, will assume the role of Ming Toy, the part in which Fay Bainter played for so long, and she can be looked to to do it well. She is the right type of woman, and she has the ability. The other members of the cast will be seen to splendid advantage.

Final performances of "Adam and Eva" will be given Saturday afternoon and evening, and Andover people who see this play will find it well worth while.

Income tax laws have their good points. Men nowadays don't lie as much as they used to about how much money they make.

Briggs-Allen School
The Briggs-Allen private school in the Arco building opened this week with a full enrollment. The younger pupils of grades one, two, and three met their teachers on Tuesday and the entire school assembled on Wednesday.

The principal, Mrs. Amy L. Briggs, is assisted by Mrs. Thaxter Eaton, Miss Ethel Humphreys, Miss Ruth Lindsay, and Mrs. Caroline R. Burr. Mrs. Ernest Hethington succeeds Miss Anna E. Chase who has accepted a position as teacher of history in the junior high school.

St. Augustine's Parochial School
St. Augustine's Parochial school which opened Monday for its fourth year in the new building had a very satisfactory enrollment, 260 pupils being registered. Of these 135 were boys and 125 were girls. Under the care of the Sister Superior, who has general supervision, the work of the school is progressing smoothly. She has the assistance of eight other sisters of the order of Notre Dame and each has specialized in the subject taught.

The school has made rapid strides since it was first started seven years ago, with only the five lower grades and 87 pupils. The school now prepares the pupils for high school or preparatory school, and children attend from all parts of the town. This year one of the graduates of last June entered St. John's Preparatory school at Danvers while others are at St. Mary's high school in Lawrence and at the local high school.

The enrollment is as follows: Grade 1, 33; grade 2, 39; grade 3, 36; grade 4, 34; grade 5, 25; grade 6, 32; grade 7, 22; grade 8, 19. Total, 260. There are also a few children not included in the enrollment who

The impediments of week-end trippers makes an interesting Sunday night study. Bags of course—Boston bags, Gladstone bags, suitcases of leather, suitcases of straw, golf bags, twine bags, knit worsted bags, black bags, brown bags, and a green broadcloth bag containing the family cat, a knitting bag from which an end of worsted trailed through the labyrinth of the North Station like the clew of thread which Ariadne gave Theseus—and umbrellas though there hadn't been a drop of rain for three days, remarkably to relate.

Then besides the luggage there are the children. Apparently young women are successfully piloting unassisted as many as five children, sometimes a pair of twins, frequently a babe in arms and all marvelously good-natured considering the lateness of the hour and difficulties of transportation at that congested hour.

The travelers often clutch some souvenir of the day spent in the country or at the shore. In spite of drooping lids the little tots cling manfully to their bright colored dolls and shovels, cherishing them for the next outing by the sea side.

The flappers are burdened with kewpies, fearful monstrosities in scant and garish attire, some of them merely dolls, others adorned with much tinsel and modified to form electric lamps. Wands with long streamers of bright tissue paper are also souvenirs of some gay amusement park. Flowers are carried by old and young, men and women. They are usually garden bouquets, seldom wild flowers, in bright colors and of wide variety, and much the worse for their journey in hot, close railway trains and electric cars. A well arranged or beautiful bouquet is seldom, if ever, seen, but the joy of possession is evidently as keen as if the blooms were of the rarest and most delicate beauty. Whatever the travelers carry, stands for some brightness which they have found in their brief absence from the routine of their everyday lives.

The townsman, no less an object of curiosity to the passer-by than the rest of the crowd, in addition to a rain coat, wrist bag, umbrella, and suitcase, struggled with an armful of beach grass, fully three feet long, its heads inadvertently tickling long suffering fellow passengers on the elevated.

Through its sand-colored stalks, the eye of memory will still see the sapphire sky arching over the opalescent colors of Massachusetts bay, on the far horizon the faint needle of Provincetown monument, and nearer the fishermen tending their weirs or throwing lobster pots out of their dories, the low flight of sandpipers, the distant bathers, the white sand cli's clothed with the shining waves of the bayberry mingling with the blue and white of asters and the yellow of goldenrod. And in spite of winter's wind and cold the rustling of the dry grasses will again suggest the murmur of the sea as it slips back and forth through the pebbles of the beach just below the hot sand and the beach grass.

are not quite school age attending school through the courtesy of the Sister Superior. This has been a busy week for the Sisters who have not only had the opening of the school but also the final instructions of the 125 children who were confirmed yesterday afternoon in St. Augustine's church by Bishop Anderson.

Andover Boys Enter Phillips Academy
Seven boys prepared in the Andover public schools are members of the entering class at Phillips Academy. They are Franklin Davis, 4 Ridge street; Howard Harrington, 18 Chapel avenue; Hiland J. B. Holt, 106 Main street; Howard B. Huntress, 99 Chestnut street; George Le-Boutillier, 3 Orchard street; David W. Mitchell, 123 Elm street; and Seymour Tate, 135 Main street. Daniel J. McCarthy, 20 High street, entered from St. Augustine's parochial school.

Police Court Notes
John Mangini of 317 Lynn street, Malden, appeared in Andover police court Friday charged with violation of a town by-law. He was found guilty and fined $10.
R. N. C. Barnes of Sunset Rock road reports that a 50-gallon can of gasoline was stolen from his farm on Wednesday evening. The can was evidently rolled through a raspberry patch and across a field a distance of nearly half a mile before it was loaded on a truck. The can had been filled that day.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, Joseph Keith, who was accidentally killed on September 17, 1921.
"We miss him most who loved him best."
Inserted by his widow and family.

Travel by air has now reached the same luxurious standards as travel by land. Danger from fire and engine trouble has been reduced to a minimum by new inventions. One can travel through the air at a speed of 125 miles an hour with less discomfort than is experienced on trains. Hospital airplanes with operating rooms fully equipped are a practical reality. Stabilizing appliances permit the surgeon to operate while the machine is flying through space.

Tuesday's Primary

It is impossible to recall a political contest in Massachusetts at all like that which has just closed in the primary election of Tuesday. The result in its overwhelming aspect, so far as the Republican party is concerned, is a triumph for the present chief executive, of such proportions as to lead thinking people to give some attention to an analysis of the situation. Of course in part it represents a handsome tribute to Channing H. Cox, who has added a service as Governor of the Commonwealth, to all the other public work he has performed, more important and of a higher order than the State has had for many years in the position of Governor. This is said with no disrespect toward the long line of excellent governors, but it is said as a fair, honest tribute to a man who in peculiar and critical times has made peculiarly good. Put it is much more than a tribute to the governor, as he well says, that the great mass of Republicans in Massachusetts, casting in excess of 250,000 votes, recognize the two great issues that he presented, efficient government and clean campaigning methods, as important fundamentals in an election contest.

The whole nation is full of political unrest as well as all other kinds of unrest. All over the country they have given expression to this feeling where agitation was much less forceful and aggressive than it was here, in a way to defeat the long established political control and substitute many different kinds of agitator. That this type of campaign, with probably no less unrest than in other parts of the country, has failed in Massachusetts, is a tribute to the administration of Massachusetts affairs that is most important for consideration.

The conduct of the primary campaign that has just closed in Massachusetts has not been confined to any political contest or to either political party, but has been associated with many contests in both parties, and has created a test of the direct primary that becomes of serious and compelling interest to the people.

In the Republican contest, where Governor Cox has so overwhelmingly defeated his opponent, without question the vote of the women has been a large factor. All through the agitation the governor's opponent had claimed a support of the moral forces of the State, with strong emphasis placed upon that group. They have not been fooled by any kind of argument that has been made to lead them from a support of the kind of service that Governor Cox has given. They have not followed blindly, but without question have done about the best reasoning that has been done in this campaign by any voters, and the result of their reasoning leaves them in the position of a pretty sane stable element in the Republican party. Emotional of course, for otherwise they would lose much of their attraction as women, but never sensational; not easily influenced as many had supposed by agitation against everything that is, but strongly influenced by specific, clear-cut argument, such as the governor has been able to present, they have made good as voters.

Contests in the Democratic party have been even more stirring than was that between Governor Cox and his opponent. The fight for United States Senator has probably been one of the most bitter, and certainly one of the most expensive, that Massachusetts ever knew. The expected result has been the nomination of Col. Gaston who will undoubtedly make a strong campaign against Senator Lodge. It is to be hoped that the campaign for an election may not have any increasing force along the lines of dollar expenditure, whatever may be done in the way of expenditure of energy and wire pulling. We cannot have very many such fight with at least the show of money, without going a long way toward actual debauching of the electorate.

Another Democratic fight, difficult to understand resulted in the nomination of Joseph C. Pelletier for District Attorney of Boston. This is not a result to the credit of the Democratic party, even though it was expected. Most friends of good government had believed that Mr. Pelletier had finished his public work. It looks as if there was still a duty to be performed by the Republicans and independent voters of Boston before that result actually materializes.

Returning to some less important contests in the Republican end of the primary, there is much to be satisfied with in the nomination of Lieutenant-Governor Fuller and in the success of Mr. Benton in the fight for attorney-general. These two places will be filled by growing men, full of promise for the public service of the Commonwealth.

The minor contests referred to in this column last week have resulted in a selection of excellent men for all positions at stake. The writer's personal interest in Mr. Bailey, who was a candidate for county treasurer, led him to strongly support that gentleman's candidacy. No work, however, was done for Mr. Bailey in town, while pretty strenuous efforts were made by active political forces to carry the town for the man who headed the alphabetical list of candidates, Mr. Babb, of Lynn. Mr. Babb will make an excellent county treasurer.

County Commissioner Grosvenor appears to have been defeated. This was not unexpected but we are inclined to believe that the public will find that he has been a pretty valuable public servant even though some things, as they were referred to last week, may have been registered as being against him. His successor is one of the fine young men of recent political experience. He made an excellent senator and will grow into a worthy servant of Essex County. Beginning now as he now does, let us hope he may carry with him a good sharp knife capable of doing a real job of pruning the cost of government in Essex County.

Not a Needed "Improvement"

There is a petition pending before the Board of Selectmen for the right to locate a gasoline filling station at the junction of Main Street and Hidden Road. A hearing is to be held upon this petition on Monday, September 18, at four o'clock in the afternoon, and it is very clear, from agitation that has already started, that a strong opposition will develop at the hearing.

It would seem as if it would be pretty difficult to give any satisfactory reasons why the town or the travelling public is at all concerned in the establishment of a new gasoline filling station at this point. One does not need to drive very far over any main highway in the United States without being impressed that there are all the filling stations that are necessary at the present time, and in many sections of the country so many more as to make of this type of public service a pretty genuine nuisance.

If there is no need from the standpoint of service to the public, the only thing to be gained is the profit that may be made by the people who carry on the business. Would such a profit justify what would follow favorable action on the part of the Selectmen on this petition? The locality is in the very heart of one of the most beautiful sections of Andover. If we may look upon it as the entrance to the Phillips Academy section, there are no qualifications to the statement. Once established that point becomes the same type of mess, no matter how it is conducted, that all such stations are.

It is inconceivable that there can be a single person in favor of bringing this offensive element into this particular region, and we cannot urge too strongly the belief that the citizens of the town will be almost unanimously in support of a turn-down of this petition by our local authorities.

Teacher Appointed for French Department at Abbot

Mme. Stalle's place in the French department at Abbot Academy will be taken this year by Mlle. Lucienne Foubert of Paris, France. Mlle. Foubert holds the "Certificat" of the Sorbonne, the university of Paris, and has been for the past two years in this country engaged in teaching in the University of Iowa. She has also taught in France and in England and is admirably equipped for the work.

Series of Teas to be Given to Aid Andover Guild

The committee of the Andover League of Women Voters which is to have charge of the Children's table at the Rainbow Fete given for the benefit of the Andover Guild will give a series of teas. The teas, four in number, will be held at the residence of Miss Sarah MacKeown, 126 Main street. The first a Gladioli Tea, September 27, the second a Zinnia Tea, October 4, the third a Marigold Tea, October 11, and the last a Colonial Tea, October 18, with dahlias and asters. As the Andover Guild is a community interest, the committee hopes these teas will have the support of the community. A minimum charge of ten cents a cup will be asked. The committee would appreciate flowers on the designated dates.

Wedding*DUNNELLS—BAILEY

Miss Mabel R. Bailey, daughter of Mrs. Louise Bailey of Highland Wayside, and Clifford W. Dannels, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dannels of Shawheen village, were united in marriage at noon Saturday at the home of the bride's mother. On account of a recent bereavement in the family of the bridegroom the wedding was a most simple one. Rev. F. A. Wilson, pastor emeritus of the Free Christian church, officiated using the double ring service.

Miss Ethel Bailey, sister of the bride, and Winslow Dannels, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants. Prior to the ceremony Miss Kate Pike played musical selections. A wedding luncheon was served after the ceremony to the 20 guests who attended. Both young people are prominent workers in the Baptist church. The bride has been employed as a stenographer in the Boston office of the American Woolen Co., and the groom is in the insurance business in Boston. They received many beautiful wedding gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Dannels left on a wedding trip and on their return will live at 225 Main street.

League of Women Voters to Hold Fall Business Meeting

The fall business meeting of the Andover League of Women Voters will be held at the High school, September 22, at 7:30 o'clock. After the routine business, Miss Bernice Brown of Cambridge will be the speaker of the evening.

All League members are urged to be present. This includes those who have returned the new membership cards before that date. Payment of dues, for the ensuing year may be made at this meeting. The membership cards issued by the Andover League of Women Voters may be returned at any time to Mrs. John Morrill, Chestnut street.

Obituaries*GEORGE W. BUCHAN

George W. Buchan of Lincoln street died suddenly Monday night while calling on his brother, Donald Buchan of North Andover. Mr. Buchan was in his usual health when he left home and death was due either to heart failure or a paralytic stroke.

Mr. Buchan was born in Andover April 18, 1862, and has been a lifelong resident of this town. For nearly forty years he has been an engineer at the Smith & Dove Company and was one of the oldest employees of the concern.

He is survived by five sisters: Ada A., Annie L., and Gertrude of Andover, Mrs. John C. Smith of Lawrence, and Mrs. LeGros of Danvers; four brothers: John S., Charles S., and Raymond of Andover, and Donald of North Andover.

Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. F. A. Wilson, were held yesterday afternoon from the late home.

The bearers were Donald Smith, Harold Smith, Raymond Ritchie, Philip Ritchie, William Buchan and Edward Buchan, all nephews of the deceased. Interment was in the West Parish cemetery.

WILLIAM PARIS

William H. Paris, father of Mrs. George Lawrence of Lewis street, died Saturday, aged 55 years. Deceased was employed in Shawheen Village but had been ill for some time. Besides Mrs. Lawrence he is survived by another daughter in Boston.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from his late home on Lewis street and services were conducted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

HELEN MURRAY KNIFFIN

Helen Murray Kniffin passed away at Winthrop, on Friday September 8, 1922, after a brief illness. She was born at Ballardvale, May 1st, 1847, where she lived until 1897 when she went to Winsted, Conn., to live with her daughter, Mrs. Clemens Kinta.

She was a member of the Second Congregational Church of Winsted, Conn., which she joined by letter from the Congregational Church of Ballardvale. Besides her daughter she leaves a granddaughter, Helen Kinta, and a brother, Robert V. Murray of Cleveland, Ohio. Interment was at Spring Grove Cemetery, Andover. The bearers were William Bartlett, Richard Booth, Richard Perry, L. V. Gingras and Irving Shaw. Dr. Herbert G. Mank of Tower Hill Congregational Church, Lawrence, officiated.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Louis LaFrance of Holyoke announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annette, to Maurice Joyce Curran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran of "The Croft," Andover. Mr. Curran is a graduate of Phillips Andover academy and Harvard University. At present he is connected with the brokerage house of Chase and Barlow in Boston. No date has been set for the wedding.

The Forest Products Laboratory of the Forest Service has evolved a type of crate that will carry in an aircraft 1,300-pound bombs.

Reports from Russia indicate that the grain crops are good and promise to yield sufficient to feed that country, if properly distributed. This in spite of the fact that during the year of famine a large proportion of the working cattle and other stock must have been eaten and the energies of the population greatly impaired by under-nourishment.

Christ Church Notes

The church school will reopen on Sunday at 12 o'clock. W. D. Yates is the General Superintendent. Mrs. Arthur Bliss, Jr., will have charge of the Primary Department. The first of the Guilds to start work this fall will be the Circle of Friendship which will meet with Mrs. Dick, Main street terrace, on Wednesday night at 7:45 o'clock. Gordon S. Brown is expected back from Europe this week and the musical part of the service will be in his hands on Sunday.

Fall Color Trend Is Toward Softer Colors and Higher Tones

In all French creative centers attention is now given to the selection of colors for the coming fall and winter seasons. The general movement is in the direction of softer colors and higher tones of the vivid range that always has a place for illuminating purposes. The Paris office of the Economist cables the adoption of shadow effects; that is, two tones, a light and a dark shade of a given color in combination. For example, a dress of wisteria purple in a medium shade has a wide girdle of dark wisteria, the same being decorated with rosettes of a lighter shade than the dress or girdle. The same monotone idea is carried out in the cape. Variety in dress is now sought in the artistic atmosphere of color harmony rather than in the variety of weave, as was the case when attention to color and color harmony in textiles was comparatively dormant. The colors for street wear will be black, light navy, light and dark browns, twilight blue, dull reds, grays and deep shades of wine. Neutral colors on the order of fawn will be appropriate for street wear. For afternoon such neutral shades as camel tan, grey, sand and fawns are indicated. Toast, deepening into burnt bread, will come into favor. Cafe au lait (coffee and milk) will be highly regarded. Light yellow browns classed by some as pheasant shades, look promising. Soft gray blues allied to Copenhagen have been adopted for the oncoming seasons. Summed up, the color movement is toward softer shades with some of the fire taken out of the vivid colors by the introduction of white.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

The Klover Klub held its first meeting of the season last evening with Miss Charlotte Hill of Maple avenue. Roy Bowman has returned to Niagara college, where he resumed his studies. This is his second year at the institution. The Sunday school of the Phillips Academy church will resume its sessions Sunday morning at half past nine at Peabody house. Mrs. Evelyn H. Dow has returned to her home on Whittier street after a vacation of six weeks spent at Brooklin and Southwest Harbor, Maine. The Sunday school club of the Free church will hold its first meeting of the fall in the parish house, tonight at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is desired. The Free church will entertain the Andover conference of ministers and churches at the fall meeting on Tuesday October 31. The ladies will serve supper. At the regular meeting of the Andover Fish and Game club held last evening in the lower town hall, routine business was transacted. It was reported that 20 cans of fingerling trout were received this week. The English setter belonging to Louis Costes of Bartlett street won second place in the bird-dog field trial at the second annual field day of the Haverhill Sportsman's club held last Saturday at the Kenosia avenue range. Edward C. Carter, foreign secretary for the British Y. M. C. A., arrived in New York on the S. S. Aquitania last Friday. He will be in this country about a month on Y. M. C. A. business. He spent last week-end with his sisters at their home on West-let street. The annual supper and business meeting of the Courteous Circle of The King's Daughters will be held at the South church, Monday evening, September 18 at 6:30 o'clock. Reports for the past year will be presented and the new officers will assume their duties. The usual collection to defray expense of the supper will be taken.

Avoid the Waste of Light, Heat, and Power

Many public utilities throughout the country are advertising in the newspapers recommending the conservation of light, heat, and power at this time. Some of the advertisements read as follows:— Burn fewer lights—Save gas and electric current. Turn them off when not needed—Do this when leaving a room or office where you are paying for it or not. Burn gas in mantles, not in flat-flame burners—The old-fashioned flat-flame burner uses more gas and gives less light—ask your gas company about substituting the mantle burner. Conserve all heat and power—Remember that the waste of light, heat or power is a loss of coal. Keep in mind daily the necessity during the present emergency for the utmost economy in the use of facilities requiring the consumption of fuel. Even when the coal strike is settled it will be a good many months before conditions can be adjusted to meet the needs for coal.

wrist. His injuries are not serious. Four other occupants of the car escaped injury. According to the Andover police Laundin's car struck a telephone post and rebounded against a stone wall after which it turned turtle. The driver of the car was buried beneath when it turned over while the other four occupants were thrown clear of the wreckage. The car was badly damaged.

William J. Bigelow of Silver Lake, Wilmington, was called upon to answer three charges in Andover police court on Wednesday afternoon after having run into the car of James O. Bruce of 16 Florence street, Somerville, which was parked on Central street Sunday evening opposite Christ church. Mr. Bruce had drawn out to the side of the road while he went to the garage on Main street. His car was not seriously damaged but that of Bigelow was wrecked to such an extent that it was not able to proceed under its own power. The car was towed to the garage and that together with $40 was retained as security for his appearance in court.

He was fined $50 for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and the charges of drunkenness and operating a motor vehicle so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public were placed on file. Hon. Daniel Daley of Boston was lawyer for the defense.

Crowded off the Reading road by a Winton sedan with a Vermont registration plate, the Ford car of R. W. C. Atkinson of Newburyport tipped over Tuesday morning near the residence of Alexander Crockett, resulting in serious injuries to the driver including two broken ribs and fractures of the collarbone.

The Vermont car proceeded on its way but by means of a telephone message to hold up a gray car with a low number registered in Vermont, the police stopped the car as it passed through Andover square.

The car was driven by Charles S. Thompson of South Willard street, Burlington, Vermont, who claimed to be a member of the Vermont Highway commission and professed not to know anything about the accident. Nevertheless he left $50 to defray the expenses of having Mr. Atkinson's car repaired.

Mr. Atkinson was brought to Andover by means of a stretcher placed in a fire truck and driven by Chief Emerson. After receiving medical attendance he proceeded to Newburyport by taxi, his own automobile being left in Andover for repairs. Freeman E. Hewitt of Newburyport who was driving with him was uninjured.

Charles Lee of Webster street, West Andover, operator of a motorcycle, was badly hurt when a Ford automobile being operated at a fast rate of speed and on the wrong side of the road crashed into him near the inkshop turn-out, Shawheen Village, early Sunday evening.

Following the accident Mr. Lee was carried to the Lawrence General hospital where it was found that he had suffered a dislocated hip, a bad gash on one of his knees and bruises to his ankle.

The impact of the collision caused the automobile to turn turtle and it was abandoned by the four young men who were riding it. The car was reported by its owner, Mrs. Jeannette Mackenzie of 27 Park street, Somerville, to have been stolen from South Broadway early in the evening but Mr. Mackenzie will be required to prove in court that he was not one of the party riding in the automobile at the time of the accident.

An English newspaper is printing choice bits of broken English as overheard by its readers. Two examples follow. A coffee-room waiter, who said he was Swiss, replying to a guest ordering breakfast: "Tongue is no more, thicken never you. How you like your eggs boiled, tight or loose?"

The other concerns an enraged Portuguese, who turned upon his opponent and spat out: "If I did know ze English for ze box, I would blow your nose, by damn, I am."

The Wits and Habits of the Anglemorm

The anglemorm has neither eyes nor ears, but in spite of these drawbacks, the humble creature is wise in its way. It knows enough to find food and shelter, both in winter and summer.

I have often wondered where the earthworms go in winter. Naturally one would think they go deep into the ground below the frost line, but for dry weather it would be impossible to go down so deep. In our northern states the soil freezes to a depth of four or five feet, which means several feet into hard clay or other subsoil, in which the worms cannot burrow.

Last fall, on November 7th, I dug up some flower-beds, and found many earthworms, in the black surface soil. On another occasion I dug late in the fall, for bulbs and roots in a clump of dead wild sunflowers. Here also I found many anglemorms, which had encased themselves as they do in dry weather, for the autumn had been dry. These worms, it seemed quite clear, would allow themselves to freeze in winter and would come to life again in the spring. And I think that in this way most earthworms survive the winter. But if a worm freezes on the surface of the ground, it is really killed.

Every fisherman has had difficulty to find anglemorms in a spell of dry weather in mid-summer. Dig as he might in the sweat of his brow, the worms had left their old haunts. In reality the worms are fooling the fisherman. They are still in their old haunts, but they have made themselves invisible in a case of earth, a sort of talisman, as the poets call it. In this case they are neatly coiled up, awaiting the call of the clouds. But they have also gone deeper, eighteen inches or two feet below the surface, and unless one is aware of this, and knows the trick of the talisman, he may delve and dig an hour and not find a worm.

Strange as it may sound, there are no anglemorms in the wilderness. I have looked for them in every wild place, where I have pitched my tent, in Minnesota, Wisconsin, on Isle Royale, on the Lake of the Woods, in the canyons of the Bad Lands of South Dakota, but never did I find an anglemorm. Old trappers and woodmen to whom I have talked tell the same story. "There are no anglemorms in the wilderness," they all claim, "unless somebody planted them, or brought them in by accident." I have often wondered if Darwin was aware of this fact, when he wrote his great work on the earthworm.

I am not quite prepared to make the sweeping assertion that there were originally no native earthworms in the whole North American wilderness, but in the parts where I have camped they are so scarce, if there are any at all, that the fisherman cannot find them. The only place where I ever found what seemed to be a small earthworm was in an old beaver dam in the Itasca Forest, but this was near a place where white men had logged and camped.

There are trout streams in the North Woods, along whose banks anglemorms may be found, but these are streams that have been fished by white men for many years, and the worms have been intentionally or accidentally planted.

The earthworm is one of nature's relayday children, which means that it will travel and move about only in wet weather. In fact, an earthworm cannot cross a dry or dusty road or path.

Their favorite time to crawl about, obeying the instinct of spreading over the earth, is on a rainy night in spring and summer. After sunset a night, their trails may be found on every bare patch of fine sand or mud near lawns and gardens. How the slender, thread-like trails cross and recross! I do not think that the worms travel in any special direction, they just wander hither and thither, and in this way a small colony of them would soon spread over suitable ground in every direction.

At the approach of daylight, they go back to earth, except those that were lost and bewildered on paved walks and roads, and there are thousands and thousands of these after every spring and summer rain. The myriad of anglemorms, which one finds in such places became lost and crawled themselves tired, and when the sun comes out, they die and shrivel up.

I have never seen robins and other early birds pick up any of these belated worms, but the birds have undoubtedly eaten their fill, before I get up, and they could not possibly eat them all.

While the warm rain of spring, after the black soil has thawed, will bring the worms out by the million, the great earthworm army does not respond to a late cold rain in autumn.

On the night of November 8 last year, a cold rain, mixed with a little snow, fell at St. Paul, Minnesota. The following morning I did find a few earthworms stranded on the sidewalk, but there was scarcely one where I find a hundred in spring and summer.

These venturesome worms that did not get back into the earth were killed by the frost, for during the day the weather had turned cold and the ground began to freeze. A few earthworms will move about in the day time. On one occasion I was rainbound all day in my tent on the bank of the Minnesota River. When I was tired of reading and watching the rain, I put on my rubber coat and walked along the bank to look for rainy-day children, such as frogs, snails, slugs and salamanders. On that walk I found several very large earthworms crawling leisurely about amongst the dead sticks and leaves.

Repairing of Bags and Suit Cases a Specialty

They had originally come from a nearby cultivated field, for the Minnesota River no longer runs through a wild country.

What does an earthworm know? It knows how to find its food, and take care of itself under adverse conditions. Against the new danger of cement walks, paved streets, and old roads it is almost helpless.

Its natural enemies are birds and burrowing animals like moles. It seldom shows itself to birds, and the robins probably locate it partly by sound.

Against moles the heart is no refuge, and the worms know it. If a person makes a noise like a mole, the anglemorm will hurriedly come out of the ground as far as it is capable to hurry. A lady friend of mine frees her flower pots of earthworms by probing in the earth with a knitting needle. This simple device makes them come out, and they can be picked up without difficulty.

At one time I was pumping up my bicycle, when to my surprise a fat anglemorm came hurriedly twisting out of the ground.

I know the two instances mentioned are true as to the facts. I think the interpretation is that when the earthworm perceives a disturbance in the ground resembling that caused by a burrowing enemy, the worm, guided by instinct, flees to the surface.

These are the things the worms must know or there would be no worms, as John Burroughs would have put the case. They know other things. Although they have no eyes, they know the difference between day and night. And they are remarkably quick to withdraw into their holes, and have the ability to resist being pulled out. —By D. Lange.

ABBOT ACADEMY OPENS

at Abbot in study and (gave) as well as in teaching. She will receive a warm welcome back to Abbot.

Miss Alice Sweeney gives up teaching for the present in order to engage in other pursuits, and her work will be taken this year by Miss Susan Bean, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, and a teacher of wide experience.

Miss Dorothy Bigelow has given up her position as Physical Director in order to spend more time with her father and mother, but she will still assist in sports and in physical training a part of the time. The new Director is Miss Lydia Nelson, a graduate of Syracuse University, and more recently a student at the Wellesley College School of Hygiene. Miss Nelson brings to Abbot the equipment of fine training and successful experience in this work with girls.

The regrettable illness of Miss Bertha Grimes has necessitated her giving up a year to recovery and recuperation. Her place is to be taken by Miss Frances Nason, a graduate of the University of Maine, who has had special training in Science and Household Economy.

Very recently the disturbing news has come that Mrs. Florence Stelle, who has been for several years a member of the French Department, must also give up her work for a year on account of her health. Mrs. Stelle's wit and charm, as well as her great ability as a teacher make her loss deeply felt. Her place will not yet be filled.

The resignations of Professor J. N. Ashton, of Miss Mabel Adams Bennett and of Mrs. Mildred Gates Wheeler, all of whom will be greatly missed in the school, have necessitated a reorganization of the Music Department.

The new Director of the Music Department is Professor Howard Howe, formerly of the University of Virginia. As organist in the Baptist Church in Norfolk, he has had in charge one of the finest organs in the South, and he is widely known as a brilliant organist. He has composed much, and his work has commanded the attention of the musically discriminating. He is also a fine pianist and has had a large class of piano pupils. For the past few years he has been the Supervisor of Music in the Public Schools of Norfolk, and the Conductor of the Norfolk Municipal Orchestra of fifty or sixty players, an organization which, under his direction, has made amazing progress.

When it became known in Norfolk that Mr. Howe was considering a change, overtures were made to him with a view to his appointment as Municipal Musician.

That in the face of these fair prospects and flattering offers, Mr. Howe should have accepted the appointment to Abbot Academy indicates an interest in the work of the Academy, and an attachment for New England, of which he is a native, that should be greatly to the advantage of the Academy and of the town of Andover.

Miss Kate Friskin, of London, England, has been engaged as Instructor in Piano, to assist Mr. Howe. Miss Friskin, whose brother has been for the past six years an instructor in the Institute of Musical Art in New York, has quite recently come to this country. She brings with her a brilliant record both as teacher and performer. She is a concert pianist of wide repertoire and experience. She has also organized the musical work of one of the most important academies for girls near London with notable success. She developed in the school valuable work in musical appreciation, instilling that a wide acquaintance with the world's great music was essential to culture. Her ability as a pianist and her extensive repertoire enabled her to make the great works of musical art familiar to the students. She also obtained unusual results in choral training.

Miss Friskin will reside in the Academy, and will undoubtedly contribute elements of great value to the life of the school.

In the appointment of Mrs. Ruth Thayer Burnham as Instructor in Vocal Music, the Academy is gaining another important addition to the Music Department.

Mrs. Burnham is well known throughout the country as a concert and oratorio singer. She has a rich mezzo-contralto voice, of power and beauty, and a gift of putting herself in rapport with her audience. As a teacher, she has shown the ability to discover and develop the possibilities in the voices of her pupils, many of whom are now in professional positions.

Mrs. Burnham, whose work in recent years has centered in Syracuse, N. Y., where her husband, Dr. Burnham, has been the pastor of the leading Congregational church, has recently moved to Taunton, Mass., to which Dr. Burnham has been called as pastor. It is a pleasure to state that in filling the place of Mrs. Wheeler, as violin teacher, it has been possible to arrange with Miss Marie Nichols, who has for some years supervised and assisted in the work, to take entire charge of the violin pupils. Miss Nichols is already well known in Andover as a musician of rare art, and brilliant performance. Her recitals at the Academy have been among the notable events of the year. Her success as a teacher has long been assured, and it is a great satisfaction to have her full cooperation and assistance in the work of the department.

The greatest food exhibit ever held in the West began recently at the Field Museum in Chicago. Members of the vegetable kingdom present numbered more than 250,000 items.

Wedding

COLBATH-GRAY

At the home of George Everett Gray, Tewksbury, a pretty wedding took place Saturday afternoon when Miss Wilfred Gray was united in marriage to Albert Henry Colbath formerly of this village.

The ceremony was at 3 o'clock and the couple stood beneath an arch of asters and green foliage with a background of palms, while the rooms were beautifully decorated with asters, palms and pink gladioli.

The double-ring service was used and the officiating minister was Rev. Frederick Smith of Springfield, a brother-in-law of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her father and as the bridal procession entered the room the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Evelyn Kimball of Littleton.

The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle Shurtliff of Fairhaven and Mrs. Dorothy Chase of Lowell and the best man was Elmer Shattuck, a cousin of the groom. The ring bearer was Lorraine Walker of Winchester.

The bride was gown in white satin and her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid and the maid of honor wore dresses of orchid taffeta and orchid hats trimmed with silver and carried bouquets of butterfly roses.

Following the ceremony the American Ladies Trio of Lowell furnished music for the occasion. The following composed the trio: Miss Bernice Moulton, Mrs. Florence Crawford and Miss Gertrude Regan.

A reception was held in the spacious rooms on the laws and guests from Amesbury, Ballardvale, Lowell, Fairhaven, Boston, Maryland, Tewksbury, Littleton and Winchester were present. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Colbath are popular young people, both being well-known in Tewksbury and Ballardvale and Andover. The bride is a graduate of Lowell High school and Normal school. The groom has lived in Ballardvale and Andover for many years, but some time ago moved with his mother to Malden, where his residence now is. He attended the public schools here. On his return from the wedding trip he will enter the bakery business in Malden.

The happy couple left for Nova Scotia on their wedding trip Sunday morning.

The following were among the guests present at the wedding: Bernice M. Moulton, Florence Crawford, Gertrude Regan, Mrs. H. P. Dinmore, Aard L. Walker, Jr., Charles Sherry, Harold Stark, Howard Colbath, Arnold Walker, Mrs. Chellman, John Chellman, Walter D. Coomes, H. ## SYNOPSIS

I-APRIL.—General Stanton in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warblington. Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at odds, though apparently satisfied with her lot. She has natural thoughts and aspirations which neither her sister nor her brother-in-law seem to understand. To Mrs. Deacon comes Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, secretly enamored of Deacon's elder daughter, Diana, an applicant for a "job" around the Deacon house. He is engaged, his occupation is to be the lawn in trim. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother, Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Deacon takes with Lulu, with subtle meaning, possessing the coming meeting.

II-MAY.—Chiefly because of the ripple in her placid, colorless existence which the arrival of Ninian will bring, Lulu is interested and speculative, meanwhile watching with something like envy the boy-and-girl love-making of Bobby and Diana. Unexpectedly, Ninian arrives, in the absence of Herbert, at his business, and of Ina, resting. Thus he becomes acquainted with Lulu first and in a measure understands her position in the house. To Lulu, Ninian is a much-traveled man of the world and even the slight interest which he takes in her is appreciated, because it is something new in his life.

III-JUNE.—At an outing which the family takes, Ninian and Lulu become in a measure confidential. He expresses his disapproval of her treatment as a sort of dependent in the Deacon home. Lulu has vaguely had the same thought, but her loyalty to her sister and her own diffidence make Ninian's comments embarrassing. He declares his intention of giving the family a "good time" in the city before he leaves. Diana and Bobby, in the course of "soft nothings," discuss the possibility of eloping and "surprising the whole school." Lulu, despite herself, has awakened to pleasant possibilities concerning Ninian's intentions toward herself, the more so because hitherto she has been a practical nonentity in the household, having little to do with its simple social functions. The fact that Ninian had walked home with her causes all sorts of speculations to disturb her slumbers that night.

IV-JULY.—Ninian redeems his promise of a "good time" and dinner in the adjacent city, with the attention shown her by her brother-in-law, is a delight to Lulu. At supper, after the theater, the conversation languishes, and Herbert bawlingly suggests reading the funeral service as a rebuke for the dullness. Ninian apparently jokingly utters the substitution of the wedding service, himself and Lulu participating. As part of the joke Lulu repeats the words of the civil ceremony, with Ninian. The laughter subsiding, Herbert remembers that a civil wedding is binding in the law, and as he is a magistrate, Ninian and Lulu are legally wedded. The rest of the party is shocked, but Ninian seems to be perfectly satisfied. Lulu is dumfounded but secretly happy. She and Ninian depart at once for their honeymoon, without returning to Warblington. The Deacons lose no time spreading the news in the home town, though the arrival of Lulu is sadly missed in the household.

V-AUGUST.—Lulu's marriage, now an event of a month ago, still is a subject of conversation in the Deacon family. Ina feeling that there is something vaguely disquieting in her sister's letters. Abruptly, Lulu returns to her former home, without Ninian, and with the appalling news that he and wife living (though he declares he believed her dead) when he and Lulu went through the wedding ceremony at that after-theater supper, with little feeling for Lulu's unhappy position, the Deacons think only of the disgrace to the family. Reluctantly Herbert agrees to write to Ninian, insisting on the whole truth, and Lulu takes up her old position. Herbert is inclined to leave Lulu for her part in the proceedings, and Ina defends her feebly. Billing and cooing between Bobby Larkin and Diana now merely on, though neither Diana's father nor her stepmother appear to notice anything out of the ordinary.

Chapter VI Continued

She stood awkwardly. She had a piteous, recalcitrance of her old agony at being spoken to in the presence of others. But Di had opened the "Album of Old Favorites," which Cornish had elected to bring, and now she struck the opening chords of "Bonny Breeze." Lulu stood still, looking rather pitifully at Cornish. Dwight offered his arm, absurdly crooked. The Plows and Ina and Di began to sing. Lulu moved forward, and stood a little away from them, and sang too. She was still holding Ninian's picture. Dwight did not sing. He lifted his shoulders and his eyebrows and watched Lulu.

When they had finished, "Lulu the mocking bird" Dwight cried. He said "be-ld." "Fine!" cried Cornish. "Why, Miss Lulu, you have a good voice!" "Miss Lulu Bett, the mocking be-ld!" Dwight insisted. Lulu was excited, and in some accession of falset power. She turned to him now, quietly, and with a look of surprise.

"Lulu the dove," she then surprisingly said, "to put up with you." It was her first bit of conscious repartee to her brother-in-law. Cornish was bending over Di. "What next do you say?" he asked. She lifted her eyes, met his own, and said, "There's such a lovely, lovely sacred song here," she suggested, and looked down.

"You like sacred music?" She turned to him her pure profile, her eyelids fluttering up, and said: "I love it." "That's it. So do I. Nothing like a nice sacred piece," Cornish declared. Bobby Larkin, at the end of the piano, looked directly into Di's face. "Give me ragtime," he said now, with the effect of bursting out of somewhere. "Don't you like ragtime?" he put it to her directly. Di's eyes danced into his, they sparkled for him, her smile was a smile for him alone, all their store of common memories was in their look. "Let's try 'My Rock, My Refuge,'" Cornish suggested. "That's got an real attractive." Di's profile again, and her pensive voice saying that this was the very one she had been hoping to hear him sing.

They gathered for "My Rock, My Refuge." "Oh," cried Ina, at the conclusion of this number, "I'm having such a perfectly beautiful time. Isn't everybody?" everybody's hostess put it. "Lulu is," said Dwight, and added softly to Lulu: "She don't have to hear herself sing." It was incredible. He was like a bad boy with a frog. About that photograph of Ninian he found a dozen ways to torture her, called attention to it, showed it to Cornish, set it on the piano facing them all. Everybody must have understood—excepting the Plows. These two gentle souls sang placidly through the Album of Old Favorites, and at the melodies smiled happily upon each other with an air from another world. Always it was as if the Plows walked some fair, interpenetrating plane, from which they looked out as do other things not quite of earth, say, flowers and fire and music.

Strolling home that night, the Plows were overtaken by some one who ran badly, and as if she were unaccustomed to running. "Alf Plow, Miss Plow!" this one called, and Lulu stood beside them. "Say!" she said. "Do you know of any job that I could get me? I mean that I'd know how to do? A job for money. . . . I mean a job. . . . They drew her home with them.

Lying awake sometime after midnight, Lulu heard the telephone ring. She heard Dwight's concerned "Is that so?" And his cheerful "Be right there." Grandma Gates was sick, she heard him tell Ina. In a few moments he ran down the stairs. Next day they told how Dwight had sat for hours that night, holding Grandma Gates so that her back would rest easily and she could fight for her faint breath. The kind fellow had only about two hours of sleep the whole night long.

Next day there came a message from that woman who had brought up Dwight—"made him what he was." He often complacently accused her. It was a note on a postal card—she had often written a few lines on a postal card to say that she had sent the maple sugar, or could Ina get her some samples. Now she wrote a few lines on a postal card to say that she was going to die with cancer. Could Dwight and Ina come to her while she was still able to visit? If he was not too busy. . . .

Nobody saw the pity and the terror of that postal card. They stuck it up by the kitchen clock to read over from time to time, and before they left, Dwight lifted the grille of the cooking-stove and burned the postal card. And before they left Lulu said: "Dwight—you can't tell how long you'll be gone?" "Of course not. How should I tell?" "No. And that letter might come while you're away." "Conceivably. Letters do come while a man's away!" "Dwight—I thought if you wouldn't mind if I opened it—" "Opened it?" "Yes. You see, it'll be about me mostly—" "I should have said that it'll be about my brother mostly." "But you know what I mean. You wouldn't mind if I did open it?" "But you say you know what'll be in it."

"So I did know—all you—I've got to see that letter, Dwight." "And so you shall. But not till I show it to you. My dear Lulu, you know how I hate having my mail intercepted with—" She might have said: "Small souls always make a point of that." She said nothing. She watched them set off, and kept her mind on Ina's thousand injunctions. "Don't let Di see much of Bobby Larkin. And, Lulu—if it occurs to her to have Mr. Cornish come up to sing, of course you ask him. You might ask him to supper. And don't let Monona's handkerchief—the child will never take a clean one if I'm not here to tell her. . . ."

She breathed injunctions to the very step of the bus. In the bus Dwight leaned forward: "See that you play post-office squarely, Lulu!" he called, and threw back his head and lifted his eyebrows. In the train he turned tragic eyes to his wife. "Ina," he said. "It's ma. And she's going to die. It can't be. . . ." Ina said: "But you're going to help her, Dwight, just being there with her."

It was true that the mere presence of the man would bring a kind of fresh life to that worn frame. That and wisdom and love would speak through him and minister. Toward the end of their week's absence the letter from Ninian came. Lulu took it from the post office when she went for the mail that evening, dressed in her dark red gown. There was no other letter, and she carried that one letter in her hand all through the streets. She passed those who were surmising what her story might be, who were telling one another what they had heard. But she knew hardly more than they. She passed Cornish in the doorway of his little music shop, and spoke with him; and there was the letter. It was so that Dwight's foster mother's postal card might have looked on its way to be mailed.

Cornish stepped down and overtook her. "Oh, Miss Lulu, I've got a new song or two—" She said abstractedly: "Do. Any night Tomorrow night—could you—" It was as if Lulu were too preoccupied to remember to be ill at ease. Cornish flushed with pleasure, said that he could indeed. "Come for supper," Lulu said. "Oh, could he? Wouldn't that be. . . . Well, say! Such was his acceptance. . . ."

He came for supper. And Di was not at home. She had gone off in the country with Jenny and Bobby, and they merely did not return. Mrs. Bett and Lulu and Cornish and Monona supped alone. All were at ease, now that they were alone. Especially Mrs. Bett was at ease. It became one of her young nights, her alive and lucid nights. She was there. She sat in Dwight's chair and Lulu sat in Ina's chair. Lulu had picked flowers for the table—a task coveted by her but usually performed by Ina. Lulu had now picked Sweet William and had filled a vase of silver gilt taken from the parlor. Also, Lulu had made ice cream. "I don't see what Di can be thinking of," Lulu said. "It seems like asking you under false—" She was afraid of "pretenses" and ended without it. Cornish savored his steaming beef pie, with sage. "Oh, well!" he said, contentedly. "Kind of a relief, I think, to have her gone," said Mrs. Bett, from the fullness of something or other. "Mother!" Lulu said, twisting her smile. "Why, my land, I love her." Mrs. Bett explained, "but she wiggles and chitters."

Cornish never made the slightest effort, at any time, to keep a straight face. The honest fellow now laughed loudly. "Well!" Lulu thought. "He can't be so very much in love." And again she thought: "He doesn't know anything about the letter. He thinks Ninian got tired of me." Deep down in her heart there abode her certainty that this was not so. By some etiquette of consent, Mrs. Bett cleared the table and Lulu and Cornish went into the parlor. There lay the letter on the drop-leaf side table, among the shells. Lulu had carried it there, where she need not see it at her work. The letter looked no more than the advertisement of dental office furniture beneath it. Monona stood indifferently fingering both. "Monona," Lulu said sharply, "leave them be!"

Cornish was displaying his music. "Got up quite attractive," he said—it was his formula of praise for his music. "But we can't try it over," Lulu said. "If Di doesn't come." "Well, say," said Cornish shyly. "You know I left that Album of Old Favorites here. Some of them we know by heart."

Lulu looked. "I'll tell you something," she said; "there's some of these I can play with one hand—by ear. Maybe—" "Why, sure!" said Cornish. Lulu sat at the piano. She had on the wool cholly, long sacred to the nights when she must combine her servant's estate with the quality of being Ina's sister. She wore her coral beads and her cameo cross. In her absence she had caught the trick of dressing her hair so that it looked even more abundant—but she had not dared to try it so until tonight, when Dwight was gone. Her long wrist was curved high, her thin hand pressed and fingered awkwardly, and at her mistake her head dipped and strove to make all right. Her foot continuously touched the loud pedal—the

"Oh, No," Lulu disclaimed it. She looked up, flushed, smiling.

Bett listened, sang, it may be, with them; for when the singers ceased, her voice might be heard still humming a loud closing bar. "Well!" Cornish cried to Lulu; and then, in the formal village phrase: "You're quite a musician." "Oh, no!" Lulu disclaimed it. She looked up, flushed, smiling. "I've never done this in front of anybody," she owned. "I don't know what Dwight and Ina'd say. . . ." She dropped. They rested and, unconsciously, the air of the place had stirred and quickened, as if the crippled, halting melody had some power of its own, and poured this forth, even thus trampled. "I guess you could do most anything you set your hand to," said Cornish. "Oh, no," Lulu said again. "Sing and play and cook—" "But I can't earn anything. I'd like to earn something." But this she had not meant to say. She stopped, rather frightened. "You would! Why, you have it fine here, I thought."

"Oh, fine, yes, Dwight gives me what I have. And I do to their work." "I see," said Cornish. "I never thought of that," he added. She caught his speculative look—he had heard a tale or two concerning her return, as who in Warblington had not heard? "You're wondering why I didn't stay with him?" Lulu said recklessly. This was no less than wrong from her, but its utterance occasioned in her an unspeakable relief. "Oh, no," Cornish disclaimed, and colored and rocked. "Yes, you are," she swept on. "The whole town's wondering. Well, I'd like to know, but Dwight won't let me tell."

Cornish frowned, trying to understand. "Won't let you?" he repeated. "I should say that was your own affair." "No. Not when Dwight gives me all I have." "Oh, that—" said Cornish. "That's not right." "No. But there it is. It puts me to see what it does to me. They think they all think my husband left me."

It was curious to hear her bring out that word—tentatively, deprecatingly, like some one daring a foreign phrase without warrant. Cornish said feebly: "Oh, well. . . . Before she willed it, she was telling him—" "He didn't. He didn't leave me," she cried with passion. "He had another wife." Incredibly it was as if she were defending both him and herself. "Lord sakes!" said Cornish. She poured it out, in her passion to tell some one, to share her agony of her state where there would be neither hardness nor censure.

"We were in Savannah, Georgia," she said. "We were going to leave for Oregon—going to go through California. We were in the hotel, and he was going out to get the tickets. He started to go. Then he came back. I was sitting the same as there. He opened the door again—the same as here. I saw he looked different—and he said quick: 'There's something you'd ought to know before we go.' And, of course, I said, 'What?' And he said it right out—how he was married eighteen years ago and in two years she ran away and she must be dead, but he wasn't sure. He hadn't the proofs. So, of course, I came home. But it wasn't him left me."

"No, no. Of course he didn't," Cornish said earnestly. "But, Lord's sakes—" he said again. He rose to walk about, found it impracticable and sat down. "That's what Dwight don't want me to tell—he thinks it isn't true. He thinks—he didn't have any other wife. He thinks he wanted—" Lulu looked up at him. "You see," she said, "Dwight thinks he didn't want me." "But why don't you make your husband—I mean, why doesn't he write to Mr. Deacon here, and tell him the truth—" Cornish burst out. Under this implied belief, she relaxed and his face came its rare sweetness. "He has written," she said. "The letter's there." He followed her look, scowled at the two letters. "What'd he say?" "Dwight don't like me to touch his mail. I'll have to wait till he comes back." "Lord sakes!" said Cornish. This time he did rise and walk about. He wanted to say something, wanted it with passion. He paused beside Lulu and stammered: "You—you're too nice a girl to get a deal like this. Darned if you aren't!" To her own complete surprise Lulu's eyes filled with tears, and she could not speak. She was by no means above self-sympathy. "And there ain't," said Cornish sorrowfully, "there ain't a thing I can do."

And yet he was doing much. He was gentle, he was listening, and on his face a frown of concern. His face continually surprised her, it was so fine and alive and near, by comparison with Ninian's loose-lipped, ruddy, impersonal look and Dwight's thin, high-boned hardness. All the time Cornish gave her something, instead of drawing upon her. Above all, he was there, and she could talk to him. "It's—it's funny," Lulu said. "I'd be awful glad if I just could know for sure that the other woman was alive—if I couldn't know she's dead." This surprising admission Cornish seemed to understand. "Sure you would," he said briefly. "Corn Waters," Lulu said. "Corn Waters, of San Diego, California. And she never heard of me."

"No," Cornish admitted. They stared at each other as across some abyss. In the doorway Mrs. Bett appeared. "I scraped up everything," she remarked, "and left the dishes set."

"That's right, mamma," Lulu said. "Come and sit down."

Mrs. Bett entered with a leisurely air of doing the thing next expected of her. "I don't hear any more playin' and singin'," she remarked. "It sounded real nice."

Resolute Certificates for Completion of Extension Courses

Residents of this locality who have pursued courses of study with the State division of university extension are among the Massachusetts men and women recently awarded state certificates for their achievements in correspondence and class work. The reports of the division brought up to date show that enrollments in university extension courses passed the 100,000 mark this year with the registration of some 32,000 new students. Large numbers of these students were accommodated in the various classes given in all the cities and many towns of Massachusetts, 458 classes having been organized during the year. Besides class students there were thousands of correspondence students following courses under the supervision of the staff of instructors at the State House. The ability of the division to meet the increasing demand for up-to-the-minute instruction had been proved by the offering of courses in such subjects as present day economics, methods of making income tax returns, and radio-telephony. A successful class in the last-named subject was held in the late spring in one of the buildings of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where six hundred men and women received instruction in the theory of radio operation and the set-up of typical circuits. A correspondence course in radio transmission and reception was later prepared for those wishing to study radio-phonograph service in their spare hours. An entirely new course in combustion which treats of fuel economy will be offered in the fall.

The effect of publicity given to university extension work, as shown in an educational exhibit held in Boston lately, has been the enlargement of possibilities for service on the part of the division especially outside the Boston district. Through the co-operation of the newspaper authentic announcements of the new classes and correspondence courses and other information regarding the activities of the division have been given a wide circulation reaching many interested persons who would not otherwise have been familiar with its aims and accomplishments. Increase in the efficiency of the division of university extension is illustrated by the fact that the cost per student per year is continually decreasing. In 1910 when the division was established the cost per student per year was $14, and today it is less than $4. Instruction in the 150 subjects taught by the division is free but a small enrollment charge is made for all courses to cover the cost of materials, clerical service, and the like. Courses are open to persons residing in the State whether or not they are citizens of Massachusetts.

The average age of the men and women taking work with the division is thirty; the students themselves are persons of varied callings and interests. New citizens have received instruction in civics, the automobile-owner has learned how to manage his car, the homemaker has had the opportunity to study household management and interior and exterior home decoration through courses offered by the division. Accountants, clerks, machinists, engineers, writers of advertisements, persons of foreign birth, draughtsmen, teachers and others interested in the study of college grade courses, employer and employee, are among those included in the personnel of university extension students.

The names of class students to whom certificates have recently been issued upon the satisfactory completion of the course in which they were enrolled are given below. Certificates have been received by the following students of the Elementary Applied Arithmetic course—George C. Davies, 3 Buttrick court; William Davies, 4 Boston court; Samuel B. Forsythe, 10 Maple avenue; Steward Fraser, Jr., 35 Shawheen road; George G. Haddon, 35 Essex street; John Hutton, 86 Essex street; Howard B. Johnson, 30 1/2 Maple Avenue; James M. Lowe, 13 Brechin terrace; Floyd Napier, 22 Summer street; James K. Nicol, Clark road, Ballardvale; John P. Nicol, 28 Shawheen road; William L. Sullivan, 4 Shawheen road; Michael Welch, 13 Barred street; James Lynn, 68 Essex street; William G. McDermitt, 12 Bartlett street.

The following students have received certificates upon successfully completing the course in Introductory Home Decoration—Mrs. C. D. Abbott, Red Spring road; Florence M. Abbott, Upham road; Annie C. Austin, 60 Chestnut street; Mary W. Bell, 114 Essex street; Eleanor G. Bliss, 37 Essex street; Carolyn B. Burt, 72 Chestnut street; Susan Carter, 133 Main street; Mrs. Mary Crowley, 84 Main street; Blanche F. Foster, Lupine road; Irene F. Franklin, 5 Woodland road; Mrs. Philip L. Newell, 47 High street; Mrs. Harry Sellers, 5 Avon street.

The following students have recently been issued certificates upon successfully completing the courses in which they were enrolled:—John J. Barret, 17 Harding street, Andover, elementary English; Gertrude L. Buchanan, 2 Lincoln street, elementary English; Thomas Chadwick, 9 Haverhill court, civics; arithmetic; I. Samuel B. Forsythe, 10 Maple Avenue, show card writing; I. William Gordon, 80 Poor street, blue print and plan reading; David H. Munro, 62 Morton street, practical applied mathematics for electricians; Jesse K. West, 18 Summer street, show card writing I and II.

Andover Gets Third Place
The Lawrence Gun Club won the three-covered trap-shoot on the grounds of the Haverhill Gun Club Saturday afternoon with a five-man total of 220 targets out of 250. Haverhill finishing second with 210 targets and the Andover Gun Club third with 209 targets. By this victory the Lawrence club won the cup which was offered to the winning team by the Haverhill club.

Archibald of Lawrence was tied with Coates of Andover for high gun, each breaking 46 out of their 50 targets. Tierney and Dr. Russell of the Lawrence team tied for second place with 45 broken targets. "Charley" Littlefield of Lawrence shot with the Haverhill team and was high Haverhill man with 44 hits.

The shoot was part of a great field day at the Haverhill Gun Club's grounds, including field trials for bird dogs, fly casting, etc. There were over forty-five gunners entered in the shoot and the competition was unusually close. The Lawrence and Andover team scores were as follows:—Lawrence: Archibald 46, Russell 45, Tierney 45, Doyle 42, Smith 42. Total 220. Andover—Coates 46, Dimock 44, Pitman 40, White 44, Hall 39. Total 209.

Oxford Defeat the Smith and Dove

The Oxford won easily over Smith & Dove of Andover at O'Sullivan park Saturday afternoon. The score was 7 to 2. Bunched hits by the winners in the fifth inning coupled with loose playing by the Andover team enabled them to push across five runs and put the game safely away. The Oxford scored their two other runs in the fourth inning.

In the fourth the Oxford did the first scoring when Majerison singled, went to second on an error, took third on a wild pitch and scored when Partridge dropped a perfect throw to the plate by Hosty. Legasse, who hit the ball, was safe on the play, and went all the way from first base to home on a drive to right field by Hosty. The other five Oxford runs came in the following inning. They opened with a two-base smash to left field and took third when Joe Wright mused up a hit by O'Leary. Topping laid one down in flight of the plate and was retired. O'Leary advancing, Majerison was hit by a pitched ball, choking the bases. Legasse doubled to left field and Elley and O'Leary scored. Meyers followed with a safe drive to right field and Majerison and Legasse scored. Meyers came home when Hyde dropped Hosty's fly.

Trow's single with Bowman on first scored the first run for Smith & Dove, which came in the sixth. By working the delayed steal the visitors scored another tally in the seventh. Hyde was on third and Welch was on first when the run was scored.

Brackett Recovers License

Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Tuesday restored the license of Edgar D. Brackett of Wakefield, driver of a car which was struck by the car operated by William M. Wood Jr., of Andover on August 15 when Wood and David A. Gardner of North Andover met their deaths. The State Registrar says that after an investigation of the affair he has concluded that the accident occurred without serious fault on the part of Brackett and the latter's license, which was suspended pending investigation, is accordingly restored.

To Attend School of Instruction

Members of Indian Ridge Lodge No. 136, have been invited to attend a school of instruction and initiation of members to be held by Ruth Rebekah lodge of Lawrence in Old Fellows hall on Thursday, September 21. The school of instruction will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and will be followed by a banquet at 6 o'clock. Initiation of the new members will take place in the evening.

During the evening Sister Frances Douglas, president of the Rebekah assembly of Massachusetts, will be present as well as the incoming grand master and members of the official board.

K. of C. Election

Frank S. McDonald was re-elected grand knight of Andover council, No. 1078, at the annual meeting of the organization. The officers will be installed by the due ceremony Wednesday evening, October 4, by District Deputy John Gavin of Haverhill. The other officers elected were: Deputy Grand Knight, John C. Pickles of North Andover; chancellor, John L. Dugan; warden, James F. Welch; financial secretary, Timothy J. Mahoney; recording secretary, William Harnedy; treasurer, John J. ## Winners at Flower Show

Stewart Fraser of Shawheen road carried off honors at the Lawrence Flower show, being awarded the prize for the best garden in the district. He also won first prize for the best display in the show from Andover. Thomas Low, whose garden scored 100 per cent for neatness, won second prize for the best flower display from Andover. He also figured in the prize list, winning second for white asters (6); first for lavender asters (6); and in the vegetable exhibit 1st and 2nd for carrots (6), and first for beets (6).

Other local winners were Roland Trauschke 1st gladioli, yellow, 3rd red gladioli; 1st white asters; 2nd lavender asters; George H. Ward, 2nd red gladioli; 3rd white asters; 3rd lavender asters; vegetables, George Ripley, sweet corn (6).

A common tern banded as a fledgling at Brigantine, N. Y., August 13, 1920, holds one of the long-distance records for this species, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. It was retaken on May 20, 1922, at Passa Rey, Blanchisseuse, Trinidad. Another common tern on record was banded as a nestling on the coast of Maine, and recovered four years later in the delta of the Niger River, on the west coast of Africa.

Flashing across the skies of Virginia, a meteor struck in a grove of oak trees in the south central portion of the state, making a depression in the earth which measured more than 300 square feet in area. The meteor was composed of a metallic substance and several trees were buried beneath the falling body. Homes in near-by towns were rocked by the concussion.

FYFFE WINS FINALS

Triumph Over Kayley in Bowling
Tournament. New England
Championship Tomorrow

The finals in the Shawsheen Bowling Tournament were held on Sunday afternoon and Fyffe walked away with the honors, winning over Kayley with the score of 21 to 14. Fyffe therefore becomes the possessor of the beautiful Burns cup, donated by vice president Matthew Burns, for one year and will have his name engraved on the shield at the base of the cup. The cup must be won three years in succession in order to become the permanent possession of the winner.

The match had an international flavor. George Fyffe is a Scot and Richard Kayley, his opponent, an Englishman. Fyffe bowled very carefully and won 21 to 14. Kayley abandoned his usual game and went in for driving which on some ends cost him points. Fyffe and Kayley bowled splendidly in all matches in which they appeared and came to the finals with about even averages. The match between them attracted considerable attention and they played to a big gallery.

The New England championship will be held at Franklin Field on Saturday and Shawsheen will send the following team: No. 1, James Skeas; No. 2, William MacKenzie; No. 3, George Skeas; and Frank Jamieson, Skip, and William Gordon Substitutes.

Although Shawsheen lost on the day's play the Boston club bowlers have yet to win from Shawsheen Village bowling green club and a rink representing the Hub club visited the Shawsheen Green Sunday and lost 20-17. The Jamaica Plain All Stars also sent up a quartet of topnotchers who won from the Shawsheen rink, 20-16. The village bowlers had a big lead on this championship day and looked like winners but the visitors lay 6 on the 20th end and were on the long end 19-16. The 21st end yielded one point and the match on the day's play Shawsheen lost by 1 point, the total score being Boston and Jamaica Plain 37, Shawsheen 36. Shawsheen still has a two-point lead in totals in the three games played on their green.

The teams:
Jamaica Plain All Stars—H. Lawrence, No. 1; D. O'Rourke, No. 2; T. Turnbull, No. 3; Charles Monroe, skip—20.

Shawsheen—W. Gordon, No. 1; D. Robb, No. 2; J. Skeas, No. 3; George Skeas, skip—16.

The scores by ends:

GAS NEAR HEART IS VERY DANGEROUS

Gas around the heart is not only painful and distressing. It often is the warning of conditions, which if not corrected may become dangerous. Many times the gas is caused by derangement of the digestive tract. Food is not digested properly. Gas forms and presses around the heart, interfering with its action. In acute indigestion this often results seriously. One or two Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules give quick relief. They assist in the proper assimilation of food.

On sale at W. C. Crowley's, Andover, Mass., or 60 cents by mail postpaid for large package from Jaques Capsule Co., Plattsburg, N. Y.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XLIII.—WYOMING

IT IS to Wyoming that falls the honor of being the first state to grant equal political rights to women.

In fact when congress, in 1868, created the Territory of Wyoming from parts of Dakota, Utah and Idaho, a constitution was adopted which gave women the right to vote.

There were rumors of early Spanish explorations in Wyoming but they seem unfounded by fact. Probably the first white men to visit this part of the country were Sieur de la Verendze, and his sons who passed through this region in 1748 in search of locations for trading posts. In 1804 the Yellowstone was first visited by hunters, although the fame of its scenic beauty was not given much credence until 1870 and it was set aside as a federal reserve in 1872.

The first permanent fort in Wyoming was erected in 1834 where the Laramie river flows into the Platte. Later when the stream of immigrants passed through this region on their way to the California gold fields a string of forts were erected along the Oregon Trail to protect the travelers from attacks by the hostile Sioux Indians.

Through Wyoming went not only the Oregon Trail, which was opened up by Lieutenant Fremont and his guide, Kit Carson, in 1842, but also the Salt Lake Trail. Along these routes many travelers crossed Wyoming, but few stopped and settled there as the country was the most arid of all our states. The discovery of gold in 1897 led to the founding of South Pass City and in the same year Cheyenne was laid out by the Union Pacific Railroad company.

Wyoming became the forty-fourth state of the Union in 1890 and is eighth in size with an area of 97,914 square miles. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

TENNIS DRAWINGS MADE

William M. Wood Donates "Balmoral Cup" to Be Contested For in Shawsheen Tournaments

The committee on the Shawsheen Civic Association Tennis Tournament met Tuesday evening in the Post Office building and made the drawings for men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles, and the matches are well under way.

A silver cup has been donated by William M. Wood for men's singles. The cup including the base is 18 inches high and bears the figure of a tennis player. It is to be known as the "Balmoral Cup" and must be won three years in succession to become the property of the winner. The winner will have his name engraved on the cup and may hold it until it is again contested for when it is returned to the tennis committee. Within a few days the cup will be on display at the Balmoral Spa.

Prizes will also be given in the doubles and mixed doubles divisions.

The drawings were as follows:

The long delayed finals in the preliminary tennis tournament were played on Wednesday evening after a delay of about a month due to the absence of one of the contestants.

Copehand M. Draper defeated Howard O. Frye in a three-set match by the score of 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Motorcycle and Automobile Collide

An automobile owned by Jeanette MacKenzie of Somerville and driven by four men, alleged to have stolen it in Lawrence from E. H. White of Somerville, struck Charles Lee of Webster street, West Andover, riding a motorcycle near the Inshook turnout Friday night about 8 o'clock.

The Ford was badly damaged and immediately abandoned by the occupants who escaped injury. Lee was knocked from his machine and is at the Lawrence General hospital with a dislocated hip, cuts on the left knee and ankle injuries.

The auto was reported stolen by E. H. White of Somerville, who told the police he obtained the loan of it from the owner. White stated the machine was taken from the vicinity of Bateman's soft drink emporium on South Union street early in the evening. The machine bore Reg. No. 283,694, which was the plate on the car abandoned in Shawsheen Village four days ago. The local police are investigating.

Woman's Club Food Sale and Dance

The Shawsheen Village Woman's club will hold a food sale and dance on Friday, September 22, at the Balmoral Spa. The food sale will be held in the afternoon from 2:00 o'clock until 5:00 on the south side of the Spa on the terrace between the outdoor dance floor and the Spa.

In the evening there will be outdoor dancing. Admittance will be by ticket which may be obtained at the Shawsheen market and the Balmoral Spa. In case of rain the dance will be held in Balmoral hall. The committee on arrangements consists of: Mrs. F. D. Bartlett, chairman; Mrs. P. B. Blades, Mrs. A. Horman, Mrs. Frederick Morrison, and Mrs. Ignatius MacNulty.

Shawsheen A. A. Field Day

Plans for the Shawsheen A. A. field day are progressing. This will be one of the greatest sporting events ever held in this vicinity. Many valuable cups will be awarded to the winners.

The meet will consist of all classes of track events. There will be a marathon race from the Spicket River bridge in Methuen to Shawsheen and the last quarter of a mile will be finished inside the field.

The services of the American Woolen Company band have been obtained and it will furnish music during the meet.

There will be special department races, overcrossers' races and open handicaps and various other events including boxing bouts. The admission price will be within the reach of any individual and the committee in charge guarantees to give full value in a sporting event such as was never seen in this district before.

The members of the committee in charge of the event are: George M. Wallace, Matthew Burns and Irving Piper.

Soccer Meeting

A meeting of the Northern Massachusetts and New Hampshire Industrial Soccer league was held in the American Woolen Company Service building on Sunday afternoon with President Harry Smith in the chair. The following officers and delegates were present: President H. Smith, Secretary John Haggas and Delegates T. Gunter, American Woolen Co.; G. Moore, Arlington Mills; A. Robinson, Massachusetts Cotton; J. McDonald, Shawsheen F. C.; A. Hamilton, Fore River; G. Wilson, General Electric; V. Dobson, Referee's Association.

Secretary John Haggas read the delegates' report of the State convention which met in Boston on Saturday, and it was voted that the report be accepted.

The schedule drawn up by the secretary was adopted.

It was voted that all the delegates voice the sentiment of their clubs regarding the league's collecting a small percentage of one home game for the financial benefit of the league, and report back their finding at the next meeting.

Delegate Vernon Dobson extended a cordial invitation to anyone who desires to become active as a referee, to join the Referees' association.

It was then voted to adjourn.

Cornelius Wood Made Treasurer of Edington & Co.

The directors of Edington & Company, Inc., wool dealers, announced last Friday that Frederick R. Edington has been elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William M. Wood, Jr.

At the same meeting held Sept. 7, Cornelius A. Wood was elected a director and also to the position of treasurer, left vacant by Mr. Edington's advancement.

Seek Relocation of Tracks

The eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company has petitioned the State Department of Public Works, Highway Division, for permission for alteration of location and relocation of its tracks on North Main street from Stimpson's bridge to Haverhill street at the junction of North Main in Shawsheen Village.

The hearing will be held in Room 413, State House, Boston, on Tuesday afternoon, September 26, at 2:30 o'clock. The changes are asked for in connection with the reconstruction of Main street from the bridge to the Lawrence line.

There is a possibility that this work may not be started this year. The State Department of Public Works, Highway Division, under whose direction the work will be done, is experiencing great difficulty in securing laborers on other jobs now under construction and unless conditions improve the work will be postponed until next year.

Flower Exhibit in Lawrence

James Boardman of Haverhill street had a beautiful exhibit of cut flowers at the flower show in the Lawrence City Hall under the direction of the Lawrence Horticultural society. The exhibit received much favorable comment. Mr. Boardman entered them only for exhibition, therefore was not entitled to compete for the prizes offered. He has one of the best flower gardens in and around the Andover district and visitors are always welcome. His flowers have brought many prizes in the past.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Louis La France of Holyoke announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annette, to Maurice Joyce Curran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran of "The Croft." Mr. Curran is a graduate of Phillips Academy and Harvard University. At present he is connected with the brokerage house of Chase and Barstow in Boston. No date has been set for the wedding.

Community Sunday School Reopens

The Shawsheen Community Sunday school will reopen on Sunday, September 24, at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and sessions will be held in the Post Office hall. A very successful beginning was made last spring and from that experience an excellent Sunday school is promised for this year. The course of study to be used is the International Graded.

All children and young people in the Village are invited. Adult visitors and parents will be welcome.

The school closes in time for those who wish to attend church services in various nearby districts. The school is under the direction of the Community Religious Services Committee.

Mr. Parks has been appointed Superintendent and Benjamin Babb, assistant. Mrs. George Winslow is chairman of the Sunday school teachers' association.

Some Water Power.

Thirty-one per cent of all water power in this country is on sites within the national forests, while all that on sites outside the national forests is dependent upon water arising in them, says the American Forestry association, which is fighting to keep the control of these forests out of the hands of the Interior department. The western mountains contain 72 per cent of our total potential water power and of this, 42 per cent is in the western forests. This power is being rapidly developed. The United States forest service has in force 174 power transmission lines and 197 power projects, with minimum discharge capacity of 860,000 horse power.

The Daring Dinner Gown.

"The late Mrs. George Gould," said a New York woman, "dressed beautifully, but she never dressed daringly. She didn't approve of daring dress. "Mrs. Gould entertained an Englishwoman at her Lakewood place last year. This Englishwoman was very lovely. Very ultra, too."

"I was invited to dinner to meet her. She is an athlete, you know—a swimmer, a barefoot dancer, a polo player and all that sort of thing. As she passed down the long salon of Georgian court in a marvelous dinner gown I said to Mrs. Gould:

"Oh, her figure is too divine."

"I think," said Mrs. Gould, "it's too divine."

Old Sea Captain Vanishes.

Among the sea's mysteries there is none more interesting than the fate of Capt. Joshua Slocum of Fairhaven, Mass.

Captain Slocum, a retired sea captain sailed around the world in a small boat, with an old clock by way of a chronometer, and not even a dog for companionship.

Captain Slocum completed his three-year trip in 1898, rested for ten years, and then took to sea again in his thirty-six-foot Spray. He was never heard of afterward.

Ostriches by Parcel Post.

From the southeastern corner of the United States in the Florida peninsula to the far northwestern corner in the state of Washington, probably the longest straight-line distance that can be traveled in the continental limits of the country, two baby ostriches were brought to their destination alive and kicking through the medium of the parcel post. The ostrich "peeps" were about the size of full-grown brown Leghorn hens.

Evidently, however, he thought this was an oversight on the part of his master which it was his duty to rectify.

Consequently he jumped through a kitchen window, over several walls, made his way through miles of London's thickest traffic, and finally finished up at the Horticultural hall, where he took his place on the stand.

MAN'S JUDGMENT OF WOMEN

Real Truth, Though Long Known, is Here Published Absolutely for the First Time.

A man notices, first a woman's face, second her skirt, third her shoes and fourth her hands.

He rarely sees her hat, but probably feels it. He gets the effect of it unconsciously.

Mentally, a man is first conscious of a woman's eyes, second her voice. Beyond these two his curiosity doesn't go.

But if her voice shows too much of the clever or the intellectual he begins to back off, and then probes her eyes to see whether they belie her voice or not.

A woman's eyes often do this same thing. Her voice may say, "I am very highbrow," while her eyes are saying, "Don't you believe it!"

This is the way, all over the world, men are judging women and have always judged them. But it is a great secret. Nobody knows it but a very few people who have solemnly agreed never to divulge it.

It is so universal among all men that they are quite unconscious about it.

It is here published for the first time, thus violating tradition and custom, which declare that what everybody knows should never be revealed.—Thomas L. Masson in the New York Sun.

TREES LINE MEMORIAL ROAD

People of Pennsylvania County Have Worthily Paid Tribute to Fallen Soldier Heroes.

York county, Pennsylvania, has the honor of possessing the largest stretch of road lined with memorial trees in memory of the fallen heroes in the great war in the country. The trees, numbering several thousand, have been in course of planting for two years under the auspices of the York Woman's club. They extend in a continuous line on both sides of the Lincoln highway entirely across the county. Two tablets, at either end of the 25-mile thoroughfare, were recently unveiled and dedicated. At the exercises a letter from Mrs. Warren G. Harding was received by the Woman's club, in which she said:

"In the planting of 25 miles of that famous highway, you have erected a memorial that the entire country can enjoy in the years to come. May long life attend the trees you have placed in the care of the Lincoln Highway Memorial and Tribute Tree association."

Every tree is worked with the name of a Pennsylvania soldier who gave his life in the war, and the trees have been registered with the American Forestry association.

Some Water Power.

Thirty-one per cent of all water power in this country is on sites within the national forests, while all that on sites outside the national forests is dependent upon water arising in them, says the American Forestry association, which is fighting to keep the control of these forests out of the hands of the Interior department.
